

Annual Spring Conference

Friday, April 27, 2018

8:30am to 4:30pm

The Future of the World of Work

The theme of this year's conference was chosen to help us become better prepared to assist our clients and/or students navigate an ever more rapidly changing world of work. With this in mind we will be offering the following presentations and panels for your consideration. We hope you will join us for this glimpse into the future.

Session 1

Keynote Presentation | Hacking the Career Code in the New World of Work

Come and learn about the forces re-shaping how work is done in our organizations and the impact on current and future employees. Andrea will share stories about what her clients are facing each and every day - how they are being forced to rethink their work and what skills, knowledge and competencies are needed for the future. She will share tips on how best to prepare current and future employees for career and business success in this new world of work.

Presenter - Andrea Walsh

As a Director in the Chicago office of Willis Towers Watson, Andrea leads discussions with clients regarding the Future of Work and attraction, retention, and engagement of the global workforce. And, where Andrea has led global talent initiatives for clients in various industries, including Oil and Gas, Retail, Pharmaceutical and Healthcare you can expect her to share global and future focused perspectives on the integration of cutting edge technological advances into the world of work.

Session 2

Presentation | Jobs of the Future: 2020 and Beyond

Presenter - Cassandra Wirth

Cassandra is an Economist with the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. And, in her capacity as a member of the Midwest Economic Analysis and Information Unit, involved with data analysis and outreach for the Bureau in the 10-state Midwest region, she will share the latest BLS employment projections.

Session 3
